THE REAL COST

You weren't stupid. You were never taught a system.

You opened a demat account. You watched the reels. You took a few trades on a "gut feeling" or a tip from a Telegram group — and the account is bleeding.

The difference between the nine who lose and the one who doesn't is almost never "a better tip." It's a repeatable process and ruthless risk management — which nobody ever sat you down and taught. Until now.

of F&O traders lost money last year, per SEBI's own FY23 study.

₹1.05 lakh or in net losses across individual traders in a single year. Gone.

₹1.1 lakh

the average loss per person — an entire bike, or a semester's fees.

THE REFRAKE

Trading is a learnable skill — not a jackpot.

Here's the part the gurus won't tell you, because it doesn't sell dreams: it's closer to flying a plane than to buying a lottery ticket. Pilots don't feel their way through a flight — they follow checklists and manage risk relentlessly. We teach trading the same way: a defined process, a written plan, position sizing, and the psychology to actually follow your own rules.

We can't promise you profits. Anyone who does is lying or breaking the law. What we can do is teach you to think and act like a disciplined trader — and tell you the honest truth about the odds while we do it.

THE METHODOLOGY

The Survive-First Framework

Four steps, deliberately sequenced so risk comes before reward.

1 Survive Risk rules, position sizing and max-drawdown limits — taught first, on purpose.	2 See Read price honestly: trend, support & resistance and structure (historical examples only).	3 Plan A written, rules-based plan: entries, exits, and when not to trade.	4 Sustain Psychology, journaling and review — the habits the 1-in-50 actually keep.

WHY IT'S FLIPPED Most courses teach this backwards — strategy first, risk as an afterthought. That's exactly why most students still lose. We flip it.

SURVIVE, IN PRACTICE

The Position-Size Calculator

Step 1 of the framework, made concrete. Decide your loss before you enter — then let the maths tell you how large the position can be. This is a tool, not a tip.

YOUR INSTRUCTOR

"I lost money the same way you did. Then I stopped trading like the 9, and started learning like the 1."

I'm Abul Kalam, a NISM-Certified Research Analyst. My first two years in the market looked exactly like the SEBI statistics — flip, revenge trades, a bleeding account. What changed wasn't a magic strategy; it was a written process and a risk rule I refused to break. I've spent the years since teaching that process plainly — no calls, no hype — to more than 11,400 learners.

WHAT CHANGES

Behaviour, not bank balances.

We don't show you P&L screenshots — those prove nothing and break the rules. We show you the change that actually compounds: discipline.

"Before this I was randomly buying options on tips and losing every month. Now I have a checklist, I size my positions, and I actually follow my stop-loss. I treat it like a skill now, not a gamble."	"The biggest change wasn't a strategy — it was that I finally understood why I'd been losing. I stopped revenge-trading. That alone changed everything for me."
